

Initial Request Form for Access to Data and/or Samples FACE/BioFACE/PSY-COH

On the FondaMental Foundation website, you will find the data/sample access charter describing the process and publication rules associated with FACE, BioFACE, and/or PSY-COH data, as well as summaries detailing the available data and samples. These documents will help you complete this initial request form.

This form is intended for teams within the FondaMental Network and the Labex BioPsy, as well as non-member researchers of the FondaMental Network, whether academic or private, who wish to access the data and/or samples from FACE, BioFACE, and/or PSY-COH.

FACE (FondaMental Advanced Center of Expertise) is a clinical database constructed from the electronic medical records of FondaMental Expert Centers (Bipolar Disorders, Schizophrenia, Asperger Syndrome, Treatment-Resistant Depression).

Bio-FACE is a biocollection comprising biological samples (DNA, RNA, serum, plasma, PBMCs, feces) from patients at FondaMental Expert Centers and the biological data (exome data, SNPs, inflammatory protein measurements, phenotypic and functional descriptions of immune cells, etc.) derived from these samples. The biological data collection is continuously enriched as biological samples are analyzed.

The PSY-COH cohort is a subset of the FACE cohort, including patients with Bipolar Disorders or Schizophrenia, with the specific feature of a longer follow-up period and additional clinical data collection and biological samples.

An ancillary project is a project that relies on pre-existing data collections (FACE, PSY-COH, or BioFACE) and involves the collection of new types of data and/or the inclusion of new types of subjects to address objectives different from those defined in the initial project.

The data/sample access charter, along with this form, must be completed, dated, signed, and sent by email to face@fondation-fondamental.org.
